Community gardens are opening soon

Community gardens, including those beds that have been assigned for tenant use, will open in buildings soon.

Toronto Public Health has created a set of guidelines for opening and operating community gardens safely. Toronto Community Housing has been working to put these guidelines in place.

Staff are assessing the readiness of each garden to open. Based on these assessments, gardens will be opened in phases.

We all have a responsibility to do our part to stop the spread of COVID-19 and flatten the curve. When our garden spaces open, there will be some new rules to follow. There will be a schedule to limit the number of gardeners in the space at a time, requirements to wash your hands, a sign-in/sign-out sheet, and more.

More information will be posted as decisions are finalized. We will share the information at your building, including opening dates and the full guidelines to follow to keep all gardeners and staff members safe.
